Headline:
Largely cloudy with the odd spot of light rain.

Today:
Largely cloudy with the odd spot of light rain and drizzle, particularly across the north and west of the Cheviots. Light winds will make it feel relatively warm where any brief cloud breaks do occur, most likely in the south. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining rather cloudy overnight with the odd spot of light rain possible early on, however it should become mostly dry through the second half of the night. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Friday:
A largely dry morning with broken cloud allowing for some sunny spells. Cloud increasing in the afternoon bringing some patchy rain, most likely in western parts. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cloudy Saturday with outbreaks of rain, heavy at times, spreading eastwards. Remaining cloudy and humid Sunday with further outbreaks of rain. Largely dry Monday with sunny spells.
